PRESENTATION DETAILS
Title of your presentation (Max. 10 words)	From Slavery to Freedom: Lorraine Hansberry's The Drinking Gourd
Abstract (max. 150 words)	Abstract: The institution of slavery was at its high in the southern states of the United States of America, while northern states abolished it during the later half of the nineteenth century. The African Americans were living the life of servitude under the white masters due to the racial slavery. They were either working in the houses as maid servants or on the plantations. The white masters committed innumerable atrocities on them. They were not allowed to get education and to accumulate any property. The way to freedom for them was to march to the northern States by paying money to the white masters. Being incapable of purchasing the freedom, the only ray of hope for their freedom was to escape by running away secretly to the north. The present paper attempts to highlight the painful and troublesome journey of African Americans from slavery to freedom.
